Text: An Interesting Meeting

Last Friday afternoon, I had a very interesting and unexpected meeting. After school, I decided to stop at a small café near the train station. I was tired because we had written a difficult test in maths, so I wanted to relax for a while. I ordered a hot chocolate and sat down at a small table near the window.

While I was looking at my phone, I noticed an older man sitting at the next table. He was reading a book and drinking coffee. After a few minutes, he smiled at me and asked if the seat opposite him was free. I said yes, and we started talking. At first, we spoke about simple things like the weather and the café. He told me he came there every Friday.

Soon, the conversation became more interesting. The man told me that he used to travel a lot when he was younger. He visited many countries, such as Italy, Spain, and even Japan. I was surprised because he didn't look like a typical traveller. He showed me some photos on his phone from his trips, and they were amazing. My favourite photo was from a small village near the sea.

Then he asked me about my life. I told him about my school, my favourite subjects, and my plans for the future. I said that I would like to travel and maybe work abroad one day. He smiled and said that travelling helps people understand the world better. He also gave me some advice. He said it is important to learn languages and not be afraid of new experiences.

After about forty minutes, the man looked at his watch and said he had to leave. Before he went, he told me his name was Peter and wished me good luck with my studies. He also paid for my hot chocolate, which was very kind of him. I thanked him and said goodbye.

When I left the café, I felt happy and inspired. I couldn't stop thinking about our conversation. It was just a short meeting, but it made me think differently about my future. I learned that interesting people can appear anywhere, even in a small café near a train station.
